

Facilitating Collaborative Groups

Exploring Career Pathways for Facilitators, Successes and Challenges, & The Future

Sign up for this Collaborating Conversation: May 20th, 2021, 4pm-5pm MDT

Register for free:

<https://zoom.us/meeting/register/tJcrf-yopzljHtM5joikngGPjY0VJsp6HTJB>

Join us on May 20th, for our next happy hour Collaborating Conversation. Laura Calandrella, is the author of “Our Next Evolution: Transforming Collaborative Leadership To Shape Our Planet’s Future”. Laura will share her career pathway, including successes and challenges as a facilitator of collaborative conservation groups. We will explore leadership and other foundational skills and the evolution of facilitation roles. Come prepared to share your experiences and pose questions. You can download the first chapter of Laura’s book here .

Laura Calandrella is a leadership strategist and consultant. She has spent the past two decades working with organizations from across the environmental community to design collaborative approaches to our most pressing issues. Her career began as a conservation biologist and international development practitioner. These experiences gave Laura firsthand knowledge of the power of collaboration, but also the difficulties that arise when diverse perspectives align under a shared vision for change. Now she guides the growth of sustainability and conservation partnerships by teaching the practices of collaborative leadership. Her work strengthens relationships, delivers more holistic and creative solutions, and allows her clients to achieve impactful results at increasingly larger scales.

