

Don't miss your chance to sponsor the Pre-eminent collaborative conservation gathering of the West!

Confluence is the Western Collaborative Conservation Network's biennial gathering that provides an indispensable space for learning and professional community-building within the collaborative conservation field. For the complex, landscape-scale challenges that we face today, collaboration is essential for successful land stewardship, and the professional network and skills to do that work successfully are fostered over a lifetime. To support those doing collaborative conservation on the ground and to elevate us toward a thriving future, the WCCN is hosting Confluence 2024, its third such gathering, over three days in Tucson, Arizona, from April 2-4, 2024.

Please join us in making this gathering exceptional, impactful, and diverse by becoming a Confluence sponsor today.

What participants said about previous Confluences!

"The best conference experience since COVID. Amazing atmosphere, people, food, subject matter, facilitation, rhythm, everything."

"I don't meet a lot of people like me. It [felt] so good to be surrounded by people doing the same stuff, that care about the same things, that are passionate, and who come here with good hearts. You don't always have that."

"Confluence provided me a chance to connect with individuals and their organizations from across the West, gaining knowledge and inspiration from those more experienced with collaborative conservation and gaining ideas from everyone."

YOUR SPONSORSHIP, WHICH SUPPORTS THE WESTERN COLLABORATIVE CONSERVATION NETWORK FUND, WILL HELP PROVIDE:

- Discounted registration for practitioners from community-based groups.
- Scholarships targeting underrepresented individuals.
- Support for an Indigenous consultant to guide tribal engagement and travel support for other Indigenous attendees.
- Travel expenses and honoraria for experts to ensure high-quality programming around the history and future of collaborative conservation.
